

And what shall I doe then? Ile bring a beavy,
 A hundred blacke eyd Maides, that love as I doe
 With Chaplets on their heads of Daffadillies,
 With cherry-lips, and cheekes of Damaske Roses,
 And all wee'l daunce an Antique fore the Duke,
 And beg his pardon; Then she talk'd of you Sir;
 That you must loose your head to morrow morning,
 And she must gather flowers to bury you,
 And see the house made handsome, then she sang
 Nothing but Willow, willow, willow, and betweene
 Ever was, Palamon, faire Palamon,
 And Palamon, was a tall yong man. The place
 Was knee deepe where she sat; her careles Tresses,
 A wreake of bull-rush rounded; about her stucke
 Thousand fresh water flowers of severall cullors.
 That me thought she appeard like the faire Nymph
 That feedes the lake with waters, or as Iris
 Newly dropt downe from heaven; Rings she made
 Of rushes that grew by, and to 'em spoke
 The prettiest posies: Thus our true love's tide,
 This you may loose, not me, and many a one;
 And then she wept, and sung againe, and sigh'd,
 And with the same breath smil'd, and kist her hand.

2. Fr. Alas what pittie it is?

Woer. I made in to her.

She saw me, and straight fought the flood, I sav'd her,
 And set her safe to land: when presently
 She slipt away, and to the Citty made,
 With such a cry, and swiftnes, that beleve me
 Shee left me farre behinde her; three, or foure,
 I saw from farre off crosse her, one of 'em
 I knew to be your brother, where she staid,
 And fell, scarce to be got away: I left them with her.
